Foreword

To capture the Keuka Spirit in words and pictures is not easy. It is still harder to select a symbol and say that this is our college. Our years are composed of varied and rich experiences which have different meanings for each of us. In the years to follow it may be that our memories of college will be recalled by a shadow, a song, or a happy incident. With this thought we, the staff, give to you the 1952 Kiondaga.

Dedication

Because of the friendliness, the enthusiasm and the sincerity that prevails on our campus, we, the Seniors, feel it appropriate to dedicate our yearbook to the Keuka Spirit.

We feel that the intangible oneness that exists at Keuka is so vitally important we want to remember it long after we graduate. It has been so much a part of our class, that we wish to share it with you. To each student, the Keuka Spirit has its own significance. We hope, as you look back upon your college days, you will recall that which is most meaningful to you.

It is with sincerity and a genuine desire to pay tribute to our many traditions, philosophies and ideals that we, the Class of 1952, dedicate our yearbook to the Keuka Spirit.

President Katherine Gillette Blyley

Through her untiring efforts, many of Dr. Blyley's aspirations for our college are quickly becoming a reality. Her foresight has fostered and stimulated the Keuka Plan for Social Responsibility. It is because of her administrative capabilities and progressive thinking that President Blyley has won the admiration of the students, faculty and trustees.

Dean Louise Robinson Heath

During our four years at Keuka, Dr. Heath has been one of our principal guides. She has wholeheartedly helped us in all facets of our college life. Through her guidance and interest in the students we have learned to respect and admire her fine qualities of leadership, wisdom and understanding.

We've complained about those long assignments and endless term papers, we've acted bored and sleepy during lectures and we've been argumentative over trivial points. We've enjoyed coming to your houses for coffee and discussions and having the opportunity to become better acquainted with you. We thank you for treating us as equals and always being willing to listen to our viewpoints. We have enjoyed knowing you and will remember you long after we have left Keuka.

Classes

Juniors

The members of the Junior Class quickly realized and assumed their added responsibilities as upper-classmen. As Big Sisters and Junior Counselors they helped to orientate the Freshmen.

The year was highlighted by the ordering of the beer mugs, and by the presentation of the Junior jackets of white. The triumphal Pow-Wow, onyx rings, and Seneca pins all were symbolic of the Juniors. Once more Dr. Lightner shared his wisdom and was the "perfect classmate."

The Junior class transferred Keuka to Paris as they presented "Les Nuits Parisiennes." Marijoy Donlon was crowned Junior Prom Queen.

Singing on May morning, and choosing the class hymn brought the year near an ending. May Day concluded the Junior activities as they donned caps and gowns to become Seniors.

Sophomores

"Wipe that smile off," "on the double"—with these shouts we eagerly initiated our buds into the Keuka Family. Thus began our second year on campus. Soon, however, it was our turn to "take to the woods" as the scheming Juniors laid the trail for Pow Wow. Tired, but happy we returned to our dorms with excited reports of a full nite of fun.

Seaweed and fish adorned the gym as starry eyed couples danced beneath the bow of the good ship U.S.S. Keuka at '54 Fathoms. Shortly before Field Period we proudly displayed our new maroon and white sweatshirts to fellow Keukonians.

Field Period in Community Service and first hospital work gave us the opportunity to see ourselves outside the halls of Keuka.

We humbly accepted the experience and returned with many tales to be retold at every opportunity. Then followed plans for Soph Stunt which was presented for our Big Sisters at their Senior Ball.

Freshmen

Early in the fall we entered Keuka's gates, invaded Ball Hall, and took our place in the ranks of the Keuka family.

As the weeks passed, the anticipation and tension heightened. At last, one night, the crisis broke with the shrill shriek of many whistles. Our "superior officers," the sophomores, stormed down the "quiet" halls of Ball and initiation began.

In November our freshmen stunt brought "A Holiday in Hades" to Keuka. The production of this first presentation to the school helped to unify our class.

Field Period produced a class of potential authors, as, on the eve of the deadline our completed commentaries were hastily mailed to Keuka College. When we returned in the winter we felt more a part of the college and looked forward to our remaining years at Keuka.

Organizations

Cooperative Government

Our co-operative form of government is based on student, faculty and administrative interest and participation in all activities of our college life. The governing body is represented by several organizations—student-faculty congress, house council, student forum, Senior council and judiciary. The different bodies work together—uniting and coordinating our campus life.

Co-operative government is more than a mere set of handbook regulations drawn up behind closed doors. It is our opportunity to participate in forming and enforcing the rules we live by, under our new Honor System. It is a chance to voice our opinions about what we like and do not like and what we would like changed.

Co-operative government is the key to organized and democratic life. Through voting for her student-body officers, each girl helps share in the conducting of school affairs — and orients herself for later responsibilities.

Athletic Association

Fun and relaxation combined with team work and sportsmanship are the goals of the Athletic Association. Class teams vie for cups in hockey, crew, basketball, volleyball and softball. Intramurals in softball, volleyball and basketball give everyone the opportunity to participate in an extensive program.

Crew practices at 6:00 A.M. will long be remembered by those "do or die" participants. The big reward for hard work well done was the May Day races.

Playdays also are a big part in Keuka's Athletic program. Elmira, William Smith and Cornell are included in Keuka's playday itinerary.

Big K's are awarded to those who have accumulated 800 points along with aching muscles and bruised shins.

The culmination of the sports program is the crowning of our queen on May Day. The queen signifies sincere interest, active support and sportsmanship in every way.

Religious Organizations

The Young Women's Christian Association on campus serves as coordinator of all religious organizations. Y.W. has been busy this year sponsoring movies and dances, as well as taking care of its more serious duties of religious service. Sharing in the frenzy of programs, discussion groups, and conventions, have been the individualized religious clubs—Hillel, Canterbury, Newman and Chi Lambda.

Dramatics

Arion, with its new constitution, started the year with a corn roast at the Playhouse. We presented "Hedda Gabler" in the fall, and student written and directed plays in May. A Standard Operations Procedure was formulated concerning the use of the Playhouse and its equipment by all organizations.

We had some grand programs this year: play reviews; a cutting of "The Twelve Pound Look"; a debate by Forensic on the abolishment of final examinations; recorded concerts; a speaker, Miss Duthie, from Cornell; and others.

Membership in the club rose considerably this year, and we received a great deal of cooperation and help with our many projects.

RED JACKET

From Sunday night, when the assignments are issued, until the release of the weekly newspaper on Friday, the Keukonian staff works untiringly. In the Pub office on Tuesday night one finds reporters, feature writers and editors writing, rewriting and proofreading the copy. Thursday, the staff goes to Penn Yan for another afternoon with Earl, the Keukonian's knight in linotype and printer's ink. When the paper is delivered there are signs of relief and many proud feelings.

Red Jacket's work involves creating incentives to stimulate the students to write poetry, essays and short stories for their fall, winter and spring issues. Once the copy is assembled for one issue, the staff gets together and plans the dummy for the magazine, and discusses which literary creations will be published The Red Jacket banquet, the final scheduled event of Writer's Conference, finds the editor giving awards for the best poem, essay and short story.

Pictures, copy, layouts, deadlines—and so goes the schedule for Kiondaga through the year. Fall quarter finds the staff busy with pictures, the dummy, and numerous plans for the yearbook. The pace is fast then, but winter quarter is a mass of spot deadlines, wayward copy, layouts and final decisions. After many nights of work in the Pub office, the yearbook material is at last sent to the printer. Then the staff anxiously awaits the time when Kiondaga becomes a reality.

Activities

May Day

We had all been looking forward to the endless chain of events that were about to occur on May Day. The arrival of parents and friends, moving-up exercises in the auditorium with the Freshmen and Sophomores in their white dresses and the Juniors and Seniors in their caps and gowns, crew races on the point, and the crowning of the A.A. Queen. The court for our May Queen consisted of Jan Fritz and Marge Herrendien, Freshmen; Jean Howard and Eugene Vey, Sophomores, and Dorothy Stone and Betty Potter, Juniors. There was much anticipation as the three candidates for queen appeared, but the greatest excitement came when our co-op government president Shirley Fay was crowned Queen. To all of us who know Shirl, she typifies the ideal Keuka girl—her enthusiasm, personality and ideals. Her honor attendants were Jean Bradley and Morag Kennedy.

We avidly watched a pageant depicting the queen's four years at Keuka, attended the Mother-Daughter banquet, and the Senior Step-sing on Ball Hall's front steps.

Thus ended May-Day at Keuka for another year. One that none of us will ever forget.

MAY DAY COURT

A. A. Queen

Each year, we vote for a senior who exemplifies sportsmanship, participation and enthusiasm in athletics to reign on May Day as Athletic Association Queen. This year's queen, Shirley Allan, has exemplified all three characteristics in an outstanding manner. Receiving her big "K" in her junior year, Shirley has taken an active part in all sports and athletic activities offered at Keuka. Attendants to the Athletic Association Queen, Eleanor McCormick and Harriet Dorain, have participated with enthusiasm and sportsmanship in the various A.A. activities held within the school year, and in the many sports offered.

May Day Activities

Dances

Remember the many Saturday night informal dances when we played hostess to both the fraternity and service men.

For the fun and entertainment at these dances we thank Y.W., Social Advisory, and the other organizations that so willingly sponsored them.

Junior Weekend

JUNIOR WEEK-END to everyone was a week-end whirl of French murals. As the dream of "Les Nuits Parisiennes" unfolded we viewed canopies of red and white, listened to "Mam'selle," and visited a French cafe.

Le Grand Moment of the Parisian week-end was the crowning of Marijoy Donlon as Junior Prom Queen. Anne Reeves and Nancy Robertson were Junior attendants.

Other features added to the weaving of a lasting memory. The bonfire and square dance Friday night were an important part. Then, too, the Strong Hall dance, the banquet, and open-house are meaningful to all.

Writers' Conference

NORMAN COUSINS

ROBERT P. TRISTRAM COFFIN

Writers' Conference this year meant a great deal to all of us—especially the "scribblers" on campus. This conference gave us an opportunity to meet two outstanding writers, to talk with them and know them as individuals.

On January 6 Robert P. Tristram Coffin, poet and Pierce Professor of English at Bowdoin, brought with him to Keuka the simple, down-to-earth tradition of New England. His poetry, some of which he read to us, showed this tradition in its utter simplicity and truth. Mr. Coffin, in explanation, said that poetry can be found everywhere, right at home, and in the center of everyday life. He said that the five senses, a good heart, and a will to believe are the major requirements for the modern poet. We were all interested in another of Mr. Coffin's talents, that of ink sketches which he drew in his books that we owned. By the time quiet, charming Mr. Coffin left Keuka for Maine, he had given us a deeper insight and enjoyment of his poetry and of life.

Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review of Literature, came to Keuka on February 20 as our second Writers' Conference guest. Mr. Cousins, complete with an amazing understanding of modern man and a broad knowledge of the world-at-large, challenged us to think and act in order to save our futures. During his visit, Mr. Cousins spoke to us at three meetings, and at each, he showed himself in the light of a different field of interest—political science, editings and humanitarianism. Although Mr. Cousins was introduced to us as a man who has received much recognition and great responsibility, he charmed us completely with his genuine interest in everyone about him, his disarming sense of humor, and his ability to weave tall tales! When Mr. Cousins left Keuka, he also left many questions in our minds.

Capping

The cap is the sign of our Nursing profession. We knew we were really well on our way to becoming graduate nurses the night we received them. Carrying a lamp, lighting a candle, repeating the Nightingale Pledge, and wearing our cap was the most important event in our college career.
